Nature of Exhibit

Webster Groves Nature Study Society (WGNSS) is a group of scientist and lay person that have come together to help members and the general public enjoy the study and promotion of natural history. We put our focus on the political boundaries of Missouri and the eight contiguous states.

There are separate groups within the society that focus on ornithology, entomology, botany, photography and natural history books.

We meet as a whole society monthly for a general meeting from September through April for a discussion regarding a natural history topic. At least once a month the separate groups meet for a field trip or for discussion regarding the book selected for that month's topic.

All meetings are free and open to the general public, unless stated on announcements found on our website. Please feel free to go to our website and find something that might be of interest. We as a society would like to meet you and enjoy the natural world around us. Website: www.wgnss.org
